Muse shortlisted for three Estates Gazette Awards

Muse Developments has been shortlisted in an impressive three categories in the national Estate Gazette Awards.

This year's awards focus on celebrating the individuals and businesses at the forefront of innovation, changing the property industry and built environment for the better. The judging panel is made up of leading industry experts who choose the winners across the 24 categories.

Muse is a finalist for National Company of the Year after a strong year in 2018 delivering financial success alongside transformative regeneration schemes and tangible outcomes for partners and local communities.

The English Cities Fund has been shortlisted for Regional Deal of the Year following multiple high-profile deals at its New Bailey scheme in Salford, Greater Manchester. The fund is a joint venture between Muse, Homes England and Legal & General.

Muse's partnership with the Canal & River Trust has made the finals for the Collaborators Award, for its work regenerating waterways and creating new homes in Brentford, Manchester and Tottenham.

Matt Crompton, managing director at Muse Developments, said: "The Estates Gazette Awards are extremely well-regarded throughout the property industry and have a rigorous judging process, so we're very proud to have three shortlisted entries this year.

"We strive to deliver exceptional new places across the UK, as well as investing in our people and delivering the best for our partners, so it's great to this recognised on a national stage."

The winners will be announced at a prestigious awards ceremony which will take place on 22 October at the Grosvenor House hotel in London.
